Summer School on the Precautionary Principle

The Central European University (CEU), Median and the European Environment Agency (EEA) organizes a Summer School around the Precautionary Principle in Hungary at the end of June. It is a pilot project of EEAcademy.

I will be there, teaching, coaching the participants and also learning since an amazing series of contributors are expected.

I believe the identification, mitigation and transformation of risks emanating from the use of technology is essential for risk management, sustainability governance and ethical leadership. It is an issue that is surprisingly complex and deserves a cutting edge program.

Application deadline is March 14, 2015. For more information on the Summer School, including a detailed course description and application instructions please visit: <http://www.summer.ceu.hu/precaution...>
